Sanghi, Ahmed shine at Vodafone Crossword awards

EMERGING WRITER Ashwin Sanghi has won the Vodafone Crossword Book Award 2010 in the popular fiction category for Chanakya's Chant.

The award, decided by readers' votes online, went to the contemporary political drama for logging the highest sales in 2010.

Sanghi, who also wrote the bestselling The Rozabal Line, was given the prize in Mumbai on Saturday, a statement issued by the Vodafone-Crossword Book Awards said on Sunday.

The award for the fiction category was shared by Omair Ahmed for Jimmy The Terrorist and Anjali Joseph for Saraswati Park.

VS Ramachandran won the award in the non-fiction category for The Tell Tale Brain, while Ranjit Lal won the award for the best children's book, Faces in the Water.

In the translation category, NS Madhavan and Rajesh Rajmohan were awarded for Litanies of Dutch Battery, translated from Malayalam. -IANS
