

the audience revealed their choice by a show of hands. Most voted biryani.

Sanghi at the launch of his latest work of fiction

'Private Delhi' goes public

The most gripping crime fiction comes from "very well-policed societies", feels Ashwin Sanghi, for whom the challenge in writing edge-of-the-seat stories is balancing suspense with surprise. The Times Lit Fest saw the launch of his book "Private Delhi" on Saturday, co-written with James Patterson, within the latter's "Private" series. Sanghi shared insights about his craft, from the art of thriller writing to dealing with rejection from publishers. He told the audience that "the challenge in a thriller is to balance suspense with surprise".

...tive and
...tive. Hist
...have wi
...tomes on
...and times
...Mysore
...which po
...good ligh
...authors o
...like Mead
...past or Be
...our time:
...feminine

"There
Gayathri
Lit Fest. :
book call
which tell last days
one Mysore
British. It set in the reign that main even ogy". It's tation of ?
"through

"Most
have been some Tip
These tal
pal chara
relegating
footnotes.
there's m
what's pr
today — t
and "mon

"You
black and consider t